The Passive Policy.

[From the New Albany (Ind.) Ledger.]

Do the friends of Passivism believe that the 3,000,000 Democratic voters of the country will consent to be assigned to the dissatisfied faction of Republicans, without question? If the fact were absolutely known that the entire party would vote solidly for these semi-Radical candidates, then it might be the means of defeating the regular nominations of the Republican Convention. We are not reliably assured of this fact, however. We have every reason to believe that such a policy would so demoralize the Democracy that the movement would lose more than it would gain. Many Democrats, finding their party surrendered into the hands of a portion of the leaders of the Radical party would become indifferent in the contest, and abstain entirely from taking part in the canvass. Others could not be convinced that it would not be as well to accept the devil they knew, as one with whom they were not so familiar, and, as a result, throw their votes with the party that this movement seeks to defeat. There is another class that would be so incensed at such a surrender of principle, that they would boldly take a stand for the candidate whom they believed held the winning card. Thus, between the various conflicting interests and inclinations, the strength of the party would be frittered away until, at the polls, the Grant opposition would find themselves in a greater minority than was the Democracy at the last Presidential election.

[From the St. Louis Times.]

Even the passivest of the passivists shrug their shoulders and look askant at the possibility of being called upon to vote for Mr. Sumner; but what shall be said of Mr. Trumbull, who is mentioned, also, as a Presidential candidate and held up as a bright and shining light of conservatism? This statesman occupies a position at the present time of apparently greater antagonism to the Administration than does Mr. Sumner; but he lacks, in many respects, the positive characteristics of the latter gentleman, and we very much question if he can be any more safely trusted. We have never been disposed to regard Mr. Trumbull, although a lawyer of unquestioned ability and a statesman of respectable rank, as being a particularly honest politician; and he certainly falls short in those elements of personal popularity that would give him strength before the people. We are disposed to give him due credit for whatever he has said or done by way of protest against the proscriptive and centralizing tendency of the Government, nor is it important to question the motives of his disaffection; but how little, indeed, does it all amount to when weighed against a man's long record of consistent and persistent hatred of the Democratic party. He has been our cold-blooded enemy for years, nor will the Democracy soon forget the part he has played in the political history of the country. As between Mr. Sumner and Mr. Trumbull, should such a catastrophe occur as to compel us to support either, we should rather incline to the Massachusetts Senator as the least of a trimmer, as having something more of the milk of human kindness in his soul, and quite as likely to befriend the Democratic party, whenever it did not trench upon his own interests to do so.

An Effort at "Reconciliation."

The efforts to reconcile the President and the most prominent of the disaffected Senators have finally been abandoned. Those who were most active in this movement feel considerably disappointed at their lack of success, and think that a good opportunity to heal the most embarrassing dissensions in the Republican party has been allowed to pass. They urged that, in view of the successes of the Republican party in the State elections, and its acknowledged strength with the people, the President could afford to be magnanimous and make the first advances toward a reconciliation. Much of the bitter feeling, they said, was the result of misunderstanding or of mistakes which the President has since, by his actions, if not by direct declaration, admitted to be such, and done something to correct; and now General Grant, with a party behind him such as never existed in this country before, might forget the past without any danger of having his motives misunderstood, and make friends of those who have always been looked upon as the leaders of the party. The greatest efforts, as is already known, were directed to the bringing together of Mr. Sumner and the President, but those who approached the latter found him as immovable as a rock. The President disclaimed ever having taken part in any movement to impair the influence of the Massachusetts Senator in the Senate or elsewhere, and said, that he had no share in the removal, last spring, of Mr. Sumner from the Chairmanship of the Foreign Relations Committee, but he thinks that Mr. Sumner has done more to injure him than any other 100 men ever did, and, in perfect harmony with his character, as generally understood, is too obstinate to make any move toward peace. The President is reported to feel more sorely a remark attributed to Mr. Sumner, and extensively published last summer, that Gen. Grant was "the lowest man who ever occupied the Presidential chair." Mr. Sumner, on the other hand, feels indignant at the treatment which he has received at the hands of the President, or of those who are supposed to represent him; but while he asked no one to assist in returning him to his old committee, and while no position which could be conferred on him would make him approve much of the President's policy, generous treatment at the hands of those Senators who are understood to represent Gen. Grant's wishes would doubtless have removed some of the feeling on both sides. But, when the Senate was carefully canvassed and only seven of those who stood by Sumner last spring were found ready to vote for his restoration, though it was thought that a majority would favor it, if they believed it could be done, it was seen that further effort was useless. The efforts to bring General Grant and other Senators together were not so great, and have now also been abandoned. There are as yet, no signs of a breaking out of fresh hostilities; and, as it is not understood that any of the appointments now before the Senate will be strongly opposed, a truce may be expected for a while at least.

There is no instance in history where one individual has given so much money for philanthropical purposes to the suffering of other countries as Mr. A. T. Stewart. Soon after the breaking out of the rebellion he sent $10,000 to the distressed cotton weavers of Lancashire, in England. Soon after he sent out a ship freighted with provisions for the relief of the starving people of Ireland. At the outbreak of our war with the South, he subscribed for the government $30,000. The year previous to the German-Franco war there was great dearth of provisions in South-eastern Prussia, and to the sufferers Mr. S. sent $10,000, gold, for which Bismarck sent him an autograph letter of thanks. Toward the end of the war between France and Germany, Mr. Stewart sent a ship with $50,000 worth of flour to Havre, to be distributed among the suffering and poor. Afterward he sent 100,000 francs to Paris for the benefit of disabled French soldiers, and a like amount to Berlin for the Germans. His $50,000 to Chicago appropriately crowns the column.

New York claims him now—the 113 year old man who voted for all the Presidents, saws wood, and all that.

Farmers in the rich county of Benton complain that one dollar and eighty cents per bushel is rather high for California potatoes. It is to be hoped that when the price goes up to two dollars and fifty cents per bushel they can afford to raise their own.

Albany people must be hard hearted. Last week they were visited by a "Chicago sufferer," who had been born in sixteen different States of the Union, and who, like Puff, in the Critic, had been living on his misfortunes for several months, having at various times been burnt out, prostrated with fever, lost the use of his limbs and been left a widow with seven small children. Yet Albany did nothing for him.

The Yreka Journal of a recent date says: Sam Colver passed through town last Thursday on his way to Ashland from the Klamath Lake country. He has been making an efficient canvass against the swamp land thieves, and all that now remains to benefit actual settlers, is for Congress to refuse any confirmatory act in reference to the thieving swamp land law passed by the last Democratic Legislature of Oregon.

A correspondent in Polk county sends us his "observations on fattening beef cattle." He says: "Take steers in fair order in the fall, worth say six cents a pound on foot, and feed in stalls three or four months in winter; feed with chopped grain and good hay, and keep them out of the weather. By this course you may add to their value from six to twelve dollars per month, and the process will pay even with hay at twenty dollars a ton and wheat at one dollar and twenty cents a bushel. Four steers will sell for more than double what you could have got for them in the fall, and you make a market for your grain and hay, get pay for your labor and a handsome profit besides."

THE TERRITORIES.

A cattle drover named Henry perished a short time ago in a snow storm near Cheyenne.

A daily mail has been established between Corinne, Utah, and Deer Lodge, Montana.

The Territory of Montana has an Indian War claim of $513,000 which is being pressed at Washington.

Rev. C. A. Huntington is advertised to lecture before the Woman Suffrage Association at Olympia, taking the negative side of the question.

There has been an unusually heavy fall of snow all over Montana. Roads are blocked, and in some localities the price of provisions has gone up immensely.

President Grant has ordered that all Indians in Bitter Root Valley, Montana, who are not disposed to sever their tribal relations shall be removed to Jocko Reservation; but that if any of the Bitter Root Indians desire to become citizens and reside on the lands they now occupy, they shall be permitted to remain and allowed to take land under the homestead law.

The Denver (Colorado) News gives an account of an unusual suicide. William M. Whitney of that place, lost his way in a terrible snow storm that recently prevailed in the mountains, and his feet becoming frozen, he concluded to put an end to his suffering by suicide, which he committed by shooting himself in the forehead. His body was found only about eighty rods from a place of safety.

Beautiful Snow.

One dark Saturday morning in the dead of winter, many years ago, there died at the Commercial Hospital, Cincinnati, a young woman over whose head only two-and-twenty summers had passed. She had once been possessed of an enviable share of beauty; had been, as she herself said, "flattered and sought for the charms of her face;" but, alas! upon her fair brow had long been written that terrible word—fallen! Once the pride of respectable parentage, her first wrong step was the small beginning of the "same old story over again," which has been the only life history of thousands. Highly educated and accomplished in manners, she might have shone in the best of society. But the evil hour that proved her ruin was out the door from childhood; and having spent a young life in shame, the poor friendless one died the melancholy death of a broken-hearted outcast.

Among her personal effects was found, in manuscript, the "Beautiful Snow," which was immediately carried to Enos B. Reed, a gentleman of culture and literary tastes, who was at that time editor of the National Union. In the columns of that paper, on the morning following the girl's death, the poem appeared in print for the first time. When the paper containing the poem came out on Sunday morning, the body of the victim had not yet received burial. The attention of Thomas Buchanan Read, one of the best American poets, was soon directed to the newly published lines, who was so taken with their stirring pathos, that he immediately repaired to the home of the deceased and followed the corpse to its resting place.

This is the story as popularly told. Latterly the poem is alleged to have been written by one of our most gifted authors. Belong to whosoever it may, "Beautiful Snow" will always be regarded as one of the brightest gems in American literature.

THE GOVERNMENT OF BRITAIN—PERSONALITY OF THE QUEEN WITH THE PEOPLE.—The London Globe, of November 30, after detailing the condition of the Prince of Wales on the afternoon of that day, said:

Yesterday Her Majesty visited the sick bed of her illustrious son. The keen and personal sympathy which the public feels with its Sovereign is but a proof of the intensity of the loyalty which characterizes the entire nation of England. And this loyalty is something more than a vague and traditional sentiment of her people, not merely because she sits upon the throne, but because her subjects are so intimately acquainted with the entire course of her private life. The sovereign, therefore, is not with us of the nature of a mere abstraction. We have followed Her Majesty through all her vicissitudes, we have been admitted to the secret alike of her sorrows and her joys. We will venture to say that the publication of her Highland diary gave new shape and reality, new form and substance, to the loyal instincts of Englishmen and English women, because it appealed to the strongest sympathies and instincts of English domestic life. It is therefore, needless to say that Her Majesty has, in the trial which has now befallen her, the fervent sympathy of all her subjects. She has the loyal affection of all Englishmen as their Queen; she has from each of us the full meed of respectful and personal regard not merely as one who has discharged the high duties of her official station without reproach, but who, as wife and mother, is endeared to us by her sufferings and her true womanly love.

GENERAL NEWS CONDENSATIONS.

For a wonder the national committee of the "strong-minded" have decided to ask Congress for an act giving women the right to vote in the District of Columbia, instead of carrying their cases to the Supreme Court of the United States. It is almost beyond the utmost stretch of imagination to believe that the Amazons have concluded to abandon their project of climbing over the fence into the political pasture, instead of persuading the herdsmen to let down the bars in the regular way.

Charles McClellan, the Goose Lake mail contractor, says the Susanville Sage Brush, informs us that new mining discoveries have been made in the mountains around Goose Lake. He derived his information from the man who carries the mail from Alden to Willow ranch in Goose Lake valley. He stated that a German had sold his interest in a mine for quite a sum of money. Several packages of rock from that section were sent below some time ago to our own knowledge, and we cannot see any good reason why mines should not exist between Hayden Hill and Canyon City, Oregon.

Some of the New York papers, now arriving by mail, seem to feel injured because the Prince of Wales didn't die promptly. They had seven columns each of obituary in type, and it is evident from their tone that they thought him an unconscionable time dying. And then to make the injury complete he got well at last.

A Woman's Views.

There is much good sense in the following extracts which we take from a letter written to the Bulletin by Mrs. Haxter of Forest Grove:

The time may possibly come when woman will vote; but I cannot see that the right of suffrage will result in any great good to herself or society. It cannot make our natures any better; it will not make our responsibilities as wives and mothers any less; it will not lighten the burden of care which may be our portion. If a woman has been so unfortunate as to marry a man possessing a low nature, her vote, certainly, cannot refine or elevate him. I cannot see that her vote will result in any good to the home circle. If woman, in addition to the cares which already devolve upon her, was obliged to look after political matters that would add very much to the burden she is obliged to bear. The laws of nature are inexorable, and there is a law which should keep any woman having a family from even wishing to engage in affairs of State—it is the tie which exists between the mother and her child. The Creator has implanted in the heart of every true woman a fount of love which seems to go out to her child, from the earliest hours of infancy, even as long as life shall last, and I imagine it lives even beyond this life. She is so organized by nature that she seems fully adapted to the care of those who call her by the holy name of mother. No second person can fill a mother's place to her children. Any woman having a family, who launches into public life, does so at the expense of her own happiness, and that of her loved ones. How this objection can be bridged over I cannot understand. * * * I cannot believe that my brother, my father, or my husband, would legislate to my disadvantage; they are willing to protect me in every possible way, and shall I say to them a few of our laws are oppressive to me, I have no confidence in you, let me vote that I may make them right? No true woman would do this. * * * I claim that woman has the power to mould society at her will. Society in our country is just what woman has made it. If any woman who has sinned is an outcast from it, it is because she is suffering from the verdict pronounced by her own sex; if a man whose sin has been still more grievous is received into society as one of its brightest ornaments, it is by the permission of woman.

The New York Herald—How it is Managed and Edited—The Salaries it Pays.

[N. Y. Correspondence Richmond Whig.]

Some of the readers of the Whig may be interested in a correct statement of the cost of publishing and labor required to conduct the New York Herald, the oldest of the quarto dailies published in this city. The editorial staff consists of one chief, one managing, one financial, one city editor, and eight editorial writers. The ship news, foreign news, domestic news, statistical matters and translation departments each have a chief, with such assistance as he may require from the city department. The city department is presided over by a chief who must have gone through all the gradations of the reportorial department.

This force consists of twenty-seven reporters, who cover all the news points in New York, Jersey City, Brooklyn, and contiguous places of easy access to New York. The salary of the managing editor is $3,000 per annum; financial editor $5,000 per annum, and the writers, or sub-editors, from $40 to $60 per week; reporters $25 to $30 per week.

In the composing room, seventy-five men are employed, whose pay depends upon the skill and steadiness of their labor, some making as high as $44 per week.

The clerical force of the paper numbers about twenty, divided into relays for day and night work.

The editorial force meet daily in the "council room" of the establishment. The meeting is presided over by Bennett, father or son, as the case may be, or in the absence of both these gentlemen, then by the senior writer, Dr. Geo. B. Wallis, who, by the way is a native of Richmond. At this council all the current questions of the day are discussed, all formality in speaking on topics is avoided, and it partakes more of a family gathering. Mr. Bennett, after carefully looking over his memorandum points breaks silence, and the conversation takes a cheerful turn, and continues for upward of two hours. In the interim each editor is assigned to write a certain article. Mr. Bennett, Senior, has not written an article in the Herald for upwards of thirty years, yet he identifies himself with the editorial columns by requiring the editors to keep the tone and style of their articles within certain cardinal points.

Mr. Bennett has a telegraph wire (nine miles) connecting the Herald office with his residence at Fort Washington; also a shorter line (three miles) to his house on Fifth Avenue. By this means he is in constant communication with the office. Important news from Europe, and indeed from any part of the world is announced to him, and he sends the points for a leader over the wires, the telegraph key being manipulated by the gentle hand of his beautiful daughter, Jeannette.

The foreign correspondence of the Herald is now in charge of a gentleman in London, who receives a salary of $6,000 a year in gold. He moves and instructs the correspondents at the various European capitals.

The receipts from advertising range from $2,500 to $5,000 per day, according to the changes in the busy season of the year.

Mr. Bennett's income from his real estate and newspaper is $225,000 per year, and that of his son, $45,000.

Bennett, Sr., is seventy-five years of age, yet his brain is as vigorous as it was twenty years ago. His habits are of a very abstemious character, and to this he ascribes his good health.

Since the Democracy is making such an ado about Sam May's defalcation, which every Republican in the State condemns as much as any Democrat, won't some of our Democratic friends rise and explain about that little sixty thousand dollar irregularity engaged in some years ago by the Governor de facto, John F. Miller? Information on the subject of irregularities is in order now.—Eugene Journal.

Another Well Attested Cure
OF
NASAL CATARRH

A Card from Capt. J. C. Kingsley.

Portland, Oregon, Dec. 12, 1871.

This is to certify that my little daughter, now eight years of age, has been afflicted with nasal catarrh since she was two years of age, caused by scarlet fever.

"I placed her under the care of Dr. Aborn, and after two months' treatment she was entirely cured, and it is now two months since the treatment was discontinued. Her general health has been greatly improved, and she has gained several pounds in weight.
J. C. KINGSLEY.

THE CURE IS PERMANENT.

The case of W. L. Coleman, who was blind from the effects of granulated lids, which Dr. Aborn cured some months since, hereby announces that he is permanently cured:

Westport, Dec. 12, 1871.

Dr. Aborn—Dear Sir: I take pleasure in stating that I am now as well as ever of sore eyes, and feel no symptoms of their return. I have been at work for Capt. John West & Co., at Westport, for over two months.
Yours truly, W. L. COLEMAN.

Lieut. Governor Holden's Card.

San Francisco, April 6th, 1870.

Having suffered nine or ten years with a throat and bronchial affection, I applied to Dr. Aborn, who has treated me about two months. I feel it my duty to state, for the benefit of those afflicted in like ways, that I found immediate, and, I think, permanent, relief from his treatment, and that I consider his treatment scientific, and that the Doctor is master of his profession.

All who are suffering from Catarrh in the Head—that loathsome disease so prolific of evil consequences—can be speedily and permanently cured if they apply for treatment in season. There are thousands of cases of throat disease, bronchitis and consumption due solely to catarrh, to say nothing of its less terrible consequences, impaired sense of hearing, smell, taste and sight, the loss of hair and teeth, the disgusting effluvia of the breath, the dingy complexion, dyspepsia, neuralgia, etc. These are innumerable cases, caused solely by catarrh in the head. The disease afflicts thousands who have never suspected its presence. Its symptoms are so diverse in different individuals as to often mislead the sufferer and his medical adviser. The only safe and proper course is to have an examination from a physician competent to make a correct diagnosis and to cure the evil when found to exist. Dr. Aborn cures this loathsome disease after the ordinary modes of treatment have failed.

Swamp Lands Again.

The great swamp land swindle in this State is as yet merely inchoate. Leading members of the "ring" may fondly hope that they have a sure thing for complete success, but they will find their mistake. The General Land Office will not recognize and confirm the "selections" made by the swamp land ring of this State, under the act of the State Legislature, without first causing a close investigation of the whole transaction, so as to ascertain whether the lands "selected" are really swamp lands or not. A letter from the Secretary of the Interior, through the Commissioner of the General Land Office, in reply to Governor Grover's request that the lands selected by the ring (Governor Grover says by the State, but we say by the ring, because we prefer to be accurate), indicates that the Department will be on its guard against fraudulent attempts to absorb lands not granted to the State. Governor Grover is informed by this letter that the practice of the Department has been to give the States the choice of adopting the field notes of surveyors as a basis of the lists; or, in case that was not deemed satisfactory, to permit them to furnish evidence to the Surveyor General, to be approved by the Department, that the land selected was really of swampy character. In the present case as the State (or ring) is selecting by its own agents, it will be necessary to present the lists to the Surveyor General for approval or rejection, subject to review by the General Land Office and the Secretary of the Interior. This is substantially the position stated in the Secretary's letter to Gov. Grover; hence it will be seen that those members of the ring who have been filing claims to large tracts of lands not of swampy character, have yet some difficulties before them.

The Herald has it that, by criticising Gov. Grover's letter to the Department before we had seen the Secretary's reply, we are placed in a "most humiliating attitude." It adds, "it will be seen by the Secretary's reply that the claim of the State is so clear that the Washington authorities cannot deny it." Now the Secretary's reply is exactly in accordance with the views we expressed in criticising Gov. Grover's course, viz: That the "selections" made under the State law should not be approved without careful examination of the character of the lands by agents of the General Government. This was our position, and the Secretary's letter accords exactly with it. If this be a "humiliating attitude" for us, the "organ" is welcome to make the most of it. But we venture the opinion that the "humiliation" will be that of the land ring, when they come to find a great part of their scheme defeated.

It is said by the "organ" that the "Washington authorities" do not deny the claim of the State. Nobody supposed they would. Nobody denies it. The right of the State to such lands are as actually swamp and overflowed, is unquestionable. The dispute is as to the right of the ring to lands not of that character, large areas of which are known to have been claimed under the State law. Gov. Grover in his letter to the Secretary of the Interior asks that all these "selections" be recognized by the Department, a proceeding which would give the ring a remarkably good thing. The Secretary replies that the Department must first have proof that the selections made embrace such lands as have been granted by the General Government to the State; in short, that they are really swamp lands.

There is still another feature of this business. Applications have been filed for many tracts in the southern part of the State, which have already been taken for homesteads. Swamp land speculators are thus encroaching on the rights of settlers. Protests signed by large numbers of settlers have been published. Much excitement exists in different localities in consequence of the operations of swamp land claimants, and if the thing goes on it may be expected that settlers will unite for defense of their rights, as settlers did in Iowa some years ago against a similar land ring. The tracts thus claimed in our State under the swamp land act are those which lie along streams and upon the margin of lakes. In many cases they are not of a swampy character, and in all cases they are the only lands, in those localities that are worth occupying. Settlers naturally object to being crowded out by speculators, and it will devolve on the agents of the General Government to protect them in their rights.

Every organ of the ring is filled with mouthing cant about the "interests of the State," pretending that those who opposed this scheme in its inception and who now oppose its consummation, are "arraying themselves against the welfare of Oregon." When it shall be shown that it comports with the interests of the State to have all its best lands absorbed by greedy speculators, under a specious trick; when it shall be made to appear that it is of advantage to the State to despoil many of its settlers of their lands for the benefit of those who neither toil nor spin; when it shall be established that it is the best policy of the State to build up a class of landed monopolists who will hold all its best lands at so high prices that people of limited means cannot buy them, then it will do to denounce those who have opposed these schemes as enemies to the State's welfare and progress.

Restoration of our Ocean Commerce.

The Secretary of the Treasury in his annual report says that in considering the means for the restoration of our ocean commerce two facts must be accepted: First, that it is useless to attempt to revive it with wooden ship; and, secondly, that iron ships moved by sails cannot compete with iron ships propelled by steam. He then proceeded to say that the only practical questions for consideration are these: Can the construction of iron steamships be established in this country, and, if so, by what means?

In answering these questions the Secretary says that an alteration of the law by which foreign built vessels may be admitted to American registry will afford no adequate relief, but on the contrary, the change would stimulate shipbuilding in England, while the prospect of establishing it on the continent would diminish in proportion to the prosperity of the business in the ship-yards of our rivals.

He likewise is of opinion that the removal of duties upon foreign articles used in the construction of iron steamships, or the allowance of a drawback equal to the amount of duties paid, would not, in the existing condition of things, secure the re-establishment of the business.

After consideration of the whole subject he advises the passage of a law guaranteeing to persons who may employ in the foreign trade American-built first class iron steamships of not less than two thousand tons burden each, an annual payment for the period of five years, of the sum of thirteen dollars per ton. The subsidy, he argues, should be proportionately less to vessels of lower classification.

While the use of sailing vessels and steamers built of wood may be continued successfully in the coasting trade, the trade with the British Possessions and upon the rivers and lakes of the country, the Secretary is fully convinced that any effort to regain our former position upon the ocean through their agency must end disastrously. He is sure, however, that the polity he has suggested will be effectual.

It has been noticed for some time that the whole business of bar and river pilotage is managed against the interests of Portland. This is not wonderful, since the whole business is virtually in the hands of an Astoria man, who, we have it on good authority, agreed with the managers of the last Legislature to exert himself for the Democratic party and to spend two thousand dollars in that behalf in the next election, in the consideration of the passage of the tug boat and pilot laws. It is thus that the commercial interests of our city, and in fact of our State, are, under the present administration, made a tail for the Democratic party's kite.

It is understood that members of the swamp land ring have filed applications for tracts that were surveyed prior to March, 1860, and lost to the State by the inaction of our Legislature. Nothing less than an act of Congress can secure these lands. It appears that Senator Kelly has already introduced a bill for that purpose. This is a fitting sequel to his assisting in lobbying through the Legislature the act to despoil the school lands of the State for the benefit of a corporation, of which he himself was a leading member.

It is settled now! The Herald has fixed it. It has ascertained that its party has a majority of the votes throughout the United States. "And what is more," it says, "it will elect its President and Vice President by an overwhelming majority, in this very year of 1872." Now, if this important revelation from the litigant oracle of Oregon could only reach the ears of Eastern Democrats, wouldn't it be reassuring? But they don't know these things; hence their new departures, passive dodges, and other little expedients.

It is said by the New York Herald that the proposed postal telegraph is very generally approved by the press of the country.

Woodhull Explains.

It would seem that Woodhull has still one admirer on the Pacific coast. We have this letter from him:

To the Editor of The Oregonian:

Sir: As you have published some extracts and comments in reference to Mrs. Woodhull, which tend to misrepresent her true position, and as one proposition in her Steinway Hall lecture has been misapprehended by some, in justice to her, as well as to your readers, I would ask you to publish the following from her own pen, in explanation of that proposition:

"THAT INALIENABLE RIGHT."

The preamble to the Constitution, which is its text, declares that the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness are inalienable rights. Upon this proposition the Constitution is constructed. In the Steinway Hall lecture it was asserted that it was an inalienable, constitutional and natural right to love as long or as short a period as it was possible to do, or to change that love every day if it was so desired. Will those who criticise that assertion please disprove the proposition? That's all. It by no means follows, because the right to do all that exists, that everybody must do it, or that anybody will do it. A true love is not changeable. It is only the semblance of love that changes. Promiscuity to a truly noble soul—one that has been touched by the purifying magnetism of a genuine love—is simply impossible; and it is to remedy the conditions that compel the yielding of the body where the soul goes not with it, that we contend, since we believe such commerce to be the most debasing prostitution.

But disprove the proposition, and then the case will be open for argument. Professions of confidence in the theory of freedom is one thing. Possession is quite different. Who are the professors and who the possessors?

The Storm in California.

A correspondent of the Yreka Journal writes this from San Francisco. It is somewhat entertaining, if it is not altogether convincing:

One of the immediate results following the inauguration of a Republican Governor, was the plenteous rain all over the State which commenced on Sunday last, and is still pouring down. Unbelieving Democrats will of course say that it would have rained all the same if Haight had been elected. I say I don't believe it, and my opinion is as good as any Democrat's. More than that, I assert without fear of contradiction that there has been little or no rain during the time the Democrats have had control of the State, and there was every prospect of a drouth until they went out of office. A day or two after Booth and the Republican State officers were inaugurated, the following dispatch was sent to Washington.

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 14.

Republican Governor and State officers inaugurated, Legislature organized and Sargent nominated for Senator, by a majority of three to one over all opposition, on the first ballot.

(Signed)

The following reply was received:

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.

There will be an extensive and continued rain storm throughout the Pacific Coast within three days.

(Signed)

When this telegram was published in the morning papers, Democrats with their characteristic perversity, said it was another Republican lie and refused to believe it. The Reds on the contrary having confidence in the Administration, knew it would rain, and consolated themselves with the thoughts of coming good crops, and laid in a stock of thick shoes and cotton umbrellas. Promptly to the hour on Sunday the 18th inst., the floodgates were hoisted and down came the rain, splashing on the windows, pattering on the roof, leaping and tumbling down the mountain torrent, to cool, moisten and soak the parched and thirsty plain. Now I undertake to say that the man who after looking at all this evidence is not convinced that all this is owing entirely to the success of the Republican party, he, I say, is either naturally stupid or wilfully pig-headed. Such a man is capable of doubting that Jonah kept tavern in a whale's belly, or that Noah traveled with a menagerie.

REFORMING FUNERAL EXPENDITURE.—This is the era of reforms. There are movements for moral, social and political reforms without end, and a wag once remarked that the only impossible reform was a "reform in tailors' bills." Now we hear of a league formed in England for reforming funerals. That such a movement was decidedly wanted, many can testify. It is enough to lose those we love without having an additional cause of grief in the great and useless cost which custom has prescribed for funerals. No man who loves his wife would wish to rob his widow by compelling her to waste her inheritance in his interment. Any unreasonable expenses are to be deprecated, but such is the force of the written law of fashion, that bereaved relatives have no other alternative but to "do as others do." The Funeral Reform League of London is under the leadership of Mr. Edward Beales, well known as formerly President of the Political Reform League, the Dean of Armagh, Mr. Harper Twelvetrees, and others, and it's hoped it may be as successful in promoting funeral reform as the Political Reform League was in getting the franchise for the working classes.

SENATOR WILSON'S VIEWS.

HE THINKS THE REPUBLICAN PARTY STRONGER THAN EVER THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY WAS. HE BELIEVES GRANT, BY ALL ODDS THE STRONGEST MAN IN THE PARTY, AND REGARDS HIS RE-ELECTION AS CERTAIN.

A long conversation with Senator Wilson yesterday revealed some points of very great interest in the present juncture of political affairs. It is well known that Mr. Wilson has been very active ever since the reassembling of Congress in trying to bring about a reconciliation between the President and Senator Sumner, and has exerted himself with all his power to heal the breach in the Republican party. So far all his efforts have been unsuccessful, but the fact that he has so strenuously made them, and his belief that the differences between his colleague and the President are the misapprehension of two very strong and very obstinate men, who have but little community of feeling at best, give to his utterances a very grave importance. Senator Wilson believes that the Republican party to-day is stronger and more cohesive than was the Democracy at any period of its history, and he does not conceal his belief that Grant is by all odds the strongest man in the party. He declares that no coalition can break down the President, and that every effort to destroy Grant must prove abortive. This belief is founded on Grant's prestige abroad and his popularity at home, and it is strengthened in the Senator's mind by all the peculiarities of the political situation.

At this stage of the conversation Mr. Wilson drew a most interesting picture of recent events in the history of the country, saying the war had revealed only two names, which stand, so far above all the others, that have attained a world-wide fame, those of Lincoln and Grant, that the story of our great civil war could not be written without bringing out in the clearest colors the achievements and process of Grant, while the words and acts, and even the names of no Senator of the United States was necessary to its interest or completeness. "Pitt Fessenden," the Senator remarked, "was not only the ablest debater and one of the clearest and most comprehensive thinkers who had sat in the Senate at any time during his own long years of service in that body, but he was Secretary of the Treasury at the time when the war was testing American credit and American financial ability to the utmost. Mr. Greeley had actually written a history of the conflict for the Union in two large volumes, which did not even contain Fessenden's name." From this the Senator glided naturally into a comparison of Lincoln's chances for re-election at the close of the year 1863 and the beginning of 1864, and Grant's chances now, putting out the fact that at the meeting of the Thirty-eighth Congress a majority of the Republican members of both houses were opposed to Lincoln's renomination, and took no care to conceal their hostility, while the assembling of the Forty-second Congress brings men together who acquiesce in the apparent predetermination of the people, whose will, like conscience, "doth make cowards of them all." These, of course, are far from being the Senator's words, but no other form of speech could more vividly portray the Senator's meaning. On other points Mr. Wilson was equally clear and explicit, and he does not fear that the Republican party will be in want of an acceptable and successful candidate in any event.

Vice President Colfax would, he believes, be Grant's successor by election in case of the President's death, or of any event which should prevent Grant's re-nomination, but he does not question Grant's success in spite of every effort which may be made by the strongest men in the Republican party to defeat him through a coalition with the Democrats. In Massachusetts the Senator believes the number of Grant's friends is overwhelming, and, though they deplore the unfortunate quarrel between his colleague and the President, he does not think that many Republicans could be induced to take sides against the administration. Senator Wilson combats the idea that Grant, by his own efforts, is seeking a re-nomination, and thinks the President does too many things which he would not do if he were guided only by a desire for another term. His own failure as a peacemaker, he believes, is one of the evidences of this; and the President's impolitic letter to Collector Murphy on accepting the latter's resignation, he regards as still further proof. Many other little points of the same kind were alluded to in the course of the conversation, and the Greeley-Fenton fight was also discussed, but as this part of the talk was of a private nature it cannot be divulged.

Mormon Strategy in Getting Wives.

[From the Overland Monthly for December.]

The following incident came under my observation: Brother P—— is a large, coarse-looking specimen of the Mormon male species, who, until recently, has been able to boast of a domestic felicity to the extent of four wives, and children in proportion. But now, a change in his domestic cabinet is being effected. A certain obnoxious wifely member has already been ecclesiastically disposed of; but, with a somewhat troublesome pertinacity, she still retains possession of the house she has been accustomed to occupy, where she is putting forth considerable efforts to support herself and four small children, by weaving and other domestic employments. As to worthy Brother P—— himself, he is just now engaged in a wonderfully laudable, twofold enterprise: first, to dispossess the refractory ex-wife from her present stronghold; and then, to find a suitable successor to the office just vacated in the quadrangular household. E—— is a recent imported specimen of the lower class of English life, who is, for the time being, employed as help in the household which is temporarily my home. This girl is seventeen or eighteen years of age—as ignorant and inefficient as she is vain and self confident. She is, however, strong and healthy, and not ill-looking, although the charms she displays are far more of the sunflower than of the rose order of beauty. But of one thing she is wisely self-confident: that her attractions are of a quality to meet a ready demand in the Mormon market. It was soon manifest that our enterprising Brother P—— had fixed his eye upon the not over bashful and highly expectant E—— as the one to fill the void in his household. But as disappointment is a part of the universal lot of men, it happened that, soon, another Mormon of patriarchal propensities made his appearance upon the field of contest, and, with a shrewd foresight of the end in view, applied to her parents to secure the girl to work in his family. In this he succeeded; and by easy transition she soon became one of its wifely members; while poor Brother P—— is, for the present, left in the forlorn condition of having three wives to console him, instead of four.

Postal Telegraph.

The Associated Press papers published yesterday morning a long extract from the New York Tribune against the postal telegraph project, and opposing it principally on the grounds that it will give the President the power to influence public opinion for a day or two just as he pleased. The publication of this very extract shows that the Western Union monopoly, in private hands, can be made "to influence public opinion" quite as effectively, for it secures the wide dissemination of this Tribune article against the postal telegraph, and ignores the articles of the other papers in favor of it. Commodore Vanderbilt controls the Western Union Company, which controls more than three-fourths of the telegraph lines in the United States. He is as likely to try to "influence public opinion" through this powerful instrumentality as the President, and to be much more unscrupulous in the means he employs to do so. If we must have an autocrat of the telegraph, let us rather have the President of the United States hedged in by the Constitution and watched by Congress and the people than an irresponsible speculator and railroad "operator."

THE RANKS OF LABOR.—A contemporary, speaking of the statement that the ranks of labor are crowded, says it is no such a thing, but the ranks of those who live by their wits are, as well as the ranks of incompetent workmen who have only a smattering of the trade they have been too lazy or shiftless to learn thoroughly, while skilled experts in any of the callings may find work as a general thing from early morn to dewy eve in any of our great cities, at thoroughly remunerative rates. The paper calls for any number of tailors and boot-makers who can fit their customers; printers who have thoroughly learned their trade from apprentices to journeymen, and who are proficient for any "take;" painters who have done ditto, and haven't passed into journey work after about a year's "slinging of hog hair;" dressmakers to go out by the day at three dollars a day and found—enough more so that ladies need not have to engage, as now, from three to five months ahead; laborers who will continue on working when the boss's eye is off of them, and not lose two hours per day smoking pipes or going to see what time it is. The same paper says that double the number of plumbers are wanted, in order that their wages may not be more than double that of skilled professors, bank officers and confidential book-keepers, and that charges for work may be within the means of other than millionaires; while the hatters have it their own way, and only allow an occasional apprentice, hence the enormous price and gratifying decrease in the demand for "stove pipes."

Club life is increasing to a very great extent in this country, and the interest in club organizations largely augmenting. New clubs are springing up in all the towns and cities of the country, and the people having discovered a new hobby, are evidently determined, American-like, to ride it to its utmost limit. But club life, though possessing its charms, is not altogether a satisfactory one to see creeping into the national existence. It is too apt to estrange men from family circles, and there is an alluring fascination in its freedom that is very dangerous to family happiness and unity. Again it is conducive to the formation of cliques and "rings," and leads to exclusiveness. In its favor though, it must be said, that it is agreeable in throwing men into society of congenial spirits, and forming a circle of friendly intercourse that is very pleasant.

A patent has been issued for a "creeping doll." It is to be hoped that this device will wholly supersede the lubberly and offensive baby in common use.

Failure of many of the most eminent physicians of San Francisco to cure a case of Rheumatism.—Triumph of the Unk Weed Remedy.

San Jose, August 25, 1871.

DR. A. M. LOBYEA & Co.: This is to certify that I, the undersigned, have been sick for five years, with Rheumatism, and have been treated for many ailments. My trouble has been weakness of the back and side, and wandering pains all over my body. I have been treated by many of the most eminent physicians of San Francisco, as well as of this city, but without any effect. At last I was induced to try your UNK WEED REMEDY, and the result was that after taking the contents of two bottles I found myself perfectly cured. To all afflicted with Rheumatism, I say TRY THE UNK WEED REMEDY, and you will be cured. Yours truly,

JAMES AHERN, San Jose.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, JANUARY 3, 1872.

CITY.

New Year Jollification.—Together with a number of other invited guests, we took a New Year's lunch with Multnomah Engine Co., Sunday night, or rather Monday morning, and participated with them in their annual reunion. After the bells had been rung announcing the advent of the new year, a clam-chowder lunch was served in excellent style. Several toasts were offered—to the Chief Engineer; to the Fire Department; to the press, etc.—and responses and brief speeches were made by a number of persons. The health of the Chief Engineer being given, Mr. A. A. Williams responded substantially as follows: "Brother Firemen: I thank you for calling upon me—not because I want to make a speech, but because having been elected to the honorable position of Chief Engineer, and being about to assume the duties of that office, I want to say to you that I fully appreciate the distinguished honor that your efforts, combined with other [illegible], have conferred upon me. You may [illegible] of my heartfelt thanks [illegible] [illegible] your kindness, the more when I [illegible] that while there are so many [illegible] more experience and of longer [illegible] the Department, you have [illegible] of your chief officer to fall [illegible] to the performance of [illegible] office to the best of my ability [illegible] hands that assistance which will make me worthy of the position I hold, as well as of your confidence and esteem; for I confess [illegible] experience has not [illegible] ask one more favor of you—that, in the [illegible] of your company officers, you will elect those who will be able and willing to assist me, should circumstances require it. In conclusion, I will say that, as Chief of this Department, I shall, on every occasion, render to each and every company its full rights, and I shall always demand from each company the performance of its duties, being just to all and fearing none." The [illegible] then sat on, nearly all the guests and many [illegible] of the company being called upon for speeches; and the reunion did not break up till the new year was several hours old.

How New Year's was Observed.—On Monday, New Year's day, after the first two or three morning hours most all the business places of the city [illegible], and they so remained during the rest of the day. For once the monthly bill collector [illegible] to trouble. During the day many young gentlemen devoted themselves to the usual [illegible] but the streets were so excessively bad that this custom was not by far so generally [illegible] as heretofore. On the street, however, or wherever else friends and acquaintances met, the customary salutation—"a happy new year"—[illegible] and returned, and everybody seemed to give [illegible] up to the enjoyments of the day. Private parties, family dinners and sociable [illegible] were numerous, both in the afternoon and evening. The Washington Guard had at their [illegible] a large and very enjoyable party, and [illegible] was [illegible] similar party at No. [illegible] [illegible]. The Good Templars had an entertainment [illegible] of music, acting charades, etc., at [illegible] Hall. The [illegible] had its full share of [illegible] seekers, the hall being crowded full. [illegible] the day was what everybody wished for everybody else—a happy new year.

Presentation.—On Monday evening Mr. J. [illegible], of the St. Charles Hotel, received a handsome testimonial from his employes—a beautiful cane. The presentation was [illegible] in behalf of the others by Mr. Leigh, the book-keeper, who [illegible] Mr. Jacobs said: "I have been requested by the entire body of the employes of the [illegible] here, to act in their behalf in presenting you with this cane as a slight appreciation of your many excellent qualities, both as a landlord and a gentleman. I can only add that it is our sincere wish that you may live to enjoy many [illegible] years, and that each one may be fraught with greater happiness and prosperity than that preceding it." In reply, accepting the cane, Mr. Jacobs said that the testimonial was a complete surprise to him, but it was most [illegible] to his [illegible], as a manifestation of the [illegible] will of his employes—a state of feeling [illegible] he hoped would always continue between himself and them. He would preserve the gift as a reminder of one of the most pleasant surprises of his life.

New Book on Oregon.—Mrs. F. F. Victor's new book, now in press in San Francisco, entitled "All Over Oregon and Washington," is to be handsomely illustrated, 300 octavo pages, and is [illegible] to present the country in its most attractive [illegible] characteristics with regard to scenery, soil, [illegible] and resources, not leaving out historical incidents where they are apropos. It will be [illegible] and sold at $3 per copy; but [illegible] to furnish means to get out the book in good style in early season, subscriptions are now [illegible] at $2 50 in advance. No person who is [illegible] with Mrs. Victor—having an interest [illegible] will hesitate to [illegible] with this offer if [illegible] buy the book at all. The ladies [illegible] of the [illegible] support [illegible] for her past writings, and efforts [illegible] of Oregon, and we trust none [illegible] will fail to respond [illegible] fully to the invitation.

Lecture To-night.—The course of lectures arranged by the Washington Debating Society will begin this evening at Philharmonic Hall, by [illegible] Dr. Lindsley, who will discourse upon "The Eastern Question," or Thoughts suggested by the visit of the Grand Duke Alexis. Aside from the interest which may attach to the lecture [illegible], there are reasons why there should be a [illegible] house to-night. The course [illegible] by an association of young gentlemen who are engaged in a literary enterprise the tendencies of which are all for good, and who should be, therefore, liberally and heartily encouraged. The [illegible] of this course would [illegible] the [illegible] of others and thus would be established among us not only an efficient means of culture, but a [illegible] agency whose influence for good it would be difficult to measure. Let us make this course [illegible]

The Columbia River.—On Monday the [illegible] Vancouver ran down into the Columbia river and attempted to [illegible] Vancouver. About a mile above the mouth of the Wallamet she encountered an ice gorge, the ice being quite solid and in some places thick. It was too strong to be broken up by the steamer and she returned to this city. She will go down again at half past eight o'clock this morning and renew the attempt [illegible] Vancouver. Below the Wallamet there is no ice in the Columbia.

O. & C. R. R. Freight Trains.—Hereafter, the freight trains on the Oregon & California [illegible] till further notice, will run only to Albany and only three times a week—Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. They will leave Portland at half past six o'clock A. M., and arrive at [illegible] P. M. The down freight trains [illegible] Albany at 8:42 A. M., and arrive at [illegible] 4:30 P. M. Passenger cars will be [illegible] each way. The express train will run as heretofore.

Catholic Library Election.—At the election of officers for the Catholic Library Association held in their rooms, corner Stark and Third [illegible], last Sunday, the following were elected: [illegible] Hill, President; G. L. Brendel, Vice President; L. Higgins, Recording Secretary; John [illegible], Corresponding Secretary; Frank Spellen, Treasurer; M. A. Mulurky, Librarian; Thomas [illegible], Assistant Librarian.

Election of Officers.—At the regular annual [illegible] of the Portland Hibernian Benevolent [illegible], Monday evening, January 1st, 1872, the [illegible] officers were elected for the ensuing year: [illegible], President (re-elected); Thomas Kearney, Vice President; Patrick Glynn, Secretary [illegible]; P. Callahan, Assistant Secretary; Frank [illegible], Treasurer (re-elected).

West Side Railroad.—To-morrow the Oregon [illegible] Railroad Company will commence running daily freight and passenger trains from Portland to Dairy Creek Station. Trains will leave the corner of Fourth and Stark streets at 9 o'clock A. M. For further particulars see the [illegible] advertisement.

[illegible]—Columbia Rebekah Degree Lodge, of this city, will hold [illegible] to-morrow evening at the usual [illegible], and there is talk of having some public [illegible] and it is probable that the [illegible] some connection with that matter.

The U. S. Courts.—The U. S. Circuit Court was yesterday morning adjourned till next Monday. The next session of the U. S. District [illegible] is set for next Thursday.

[illegible] Due.—The steamship [illegible] left San Francisco for this port last Saturday, and [illegible] therefore, be expected to arrive to-day.

AMUSEMENTS.

Oro Fino Theater.—There being quite a general request for the repetition of Hamlet, that great drama was put up again last night, and there was, considering the bad state of the streets, a good audience in attendance. The performance, in respect of the minor parts, was better than on the first presentation of the piece, Mr. and Mrs. Waldron giving their carefully studied and accurate presentations as before. Mr. Waldron had an enthusiastic call before the curtain at the close. The comedy of "The Youth who never saw a woman," which concluded the performance afforded great amusement. To-night Mr. Waldron will produce another sensational play, "Nobody's child, or The Waif of the Ways"—never before performed in this city.

Installation.—The officers of Multnomah Tribe No. 3, Improved Order of Red Men, for the term ending June 30, 1872, were installed last evening by D. D. V. T. Alexander Campbell. They are as follows: Ward S. Stevens, S.; Chas. M. Martin, S. S.; Henry T. Hudson, J. S.; Louis A. Tranberg, C. of R.; J. Pali Smith, K. of W.; Charles S. Mills, 1st S.; John Mestern, 2d S.; N. L. Rogers, G. of W.; William Zimmerman, S. of F.; John E. Ford, 1st W.; William White, 2d W. After the business was ended the members adjourned to Stolte & Meyer's oyster saloon and partook of a splendid supper.

West Side Telegraph.—The telegraph line connected with the Oregon Central Railroad has been erected to Hillsboro. Dr. Plummer went out yesterday for the purpose, as we are informed, of opening and establishing an office at Hillsboro or at the terminus of the road.

Church Society Entertainment.—A musical and literary entertainment will be given at the Hall street M. E. church on the evening of Saturday, January 13th, for the purpose of raising funds toward paying the salary of the pastor, Rev. W. H. Meisse. Admission 50 cents.

Got Scared.—Among other things, the "only female contortionist" wants her "Hubby" put under bonds to keep the peace. If she had fired straight when she popped at him the other day, he would have [illegible] now a very quiet "Hubby."

County Court.—The Judge and Commissioners held a short session yesterday, devoted exclusively to the examination of bills against the county. They will meet again to-day for the transaction of county business.

The Geese Hangs High.—Flocks of wild geese passed over the city last evening, going north. Their gabbling was excessive and they were evidently trying to tell what they know about the weather.

Taxes Due.—The Sheriff gives notice that taxes for 1871 are due, and that taxpayers will save trouble and expense by calling at his office and settling on or before the 15th day of the present month.

Circuit Court.—Judge Upton was engaged mostly yesterday in the hearing of motions in equity cases. It was thought he would be able to close the term to-day.

The Schools.—The public schools and most of the others were reopened yesterday after a week of vacation.

ALL OUGHT TO INSURE.

The wealthy and well to do; because the premiums paid can be conveniently spared, and they [illegible] an investment against contingencies, and return him a surer interest than stocks, which are subject to fluctuations, and give him also a peace of mind which [illegible] understand. Go Insure with Joseph Middlemiss, Bureau of Agencies. The man of moderate [illegible] all he can spare from the active employment of his capital in business, and the immediate provision for his dependents should be devoted to a permanent investment to provide his family against the casualties that overtake any business, however prosperous. This suggestion applies strongly to all who are dependent on salaries. Call at 8 Front Street, "Central Block, Portland. The poor man, because when that dread visitor, who knocks equally at the cottage door and the palace, removes him, those nearest and dearest are left without some such provision to support the cruelties of a hard, stern, unsympathetic world. The wife of his bosom is consigned to penury and drudgery—the children of his loins to want, ignorance and too often to vice. See the Agents of the New England Mutual Life Ins. Co., the Best Company to Insure in on the Pacific Coast.

On Tuesday last there arrived in this city by the Oregon and California Railroad two men from Long Tom who had come all the way here to purchase suits of clothing from J. O'Neil & Co. They had been reading the Oregonian, and found that O'Neil & Co. were selling goods cheap, consequently they journeyed hitherward. O'Neil & Co. supplied them with the star shirt, underclothes, neck-ties and other articles, the parties being satisfied that O'Neil & Co. did the handsome thing with their customers. Go thou, and do likewise, at O'Neil & Co.'s, 95 First street.

The market at the present time is fairly glutted with ready made clothing but the great difficulty is to obtain a really good and [illegible] cheap article. A visit to that old and widely known establishment of Kohn & Fishel's, 91 Front street, [illegible] the desideratum. They have an immense stock of Clothing for all kinds of weather besides other goods for gentlemen and boys.

Work of every description in the [illegible] line will be done at short notice to the best of satisfaction.

Warming Words.

The strength and the nervous energy of the human body ought to be strengthened during the winter, for two reasons: In the first place, diseases of the most deadly character may be generated at this season; and secondly, it is of the utmost importance that during the cold weather months the system should be put in a condition to withstand the effects of the Spring miasma, and the subsequent depressing heat of Summer. It is therefore advisable, in fact essential, to tone, regulate and invigorate the digestive and secretive organs at this period of the year, and, of all the stomachics and alteratives at present known, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the most powerful, the most harmless, and the most agreeable. The temperature of winter would be in itself a glorious tonic, if it did not, unfortunately, bring with it a volume of chilling moisture and unwholesome winds, which have a bad effect on the skin and lungs. These must be guarded against, or there is no safety for health. The effect of a course of the Bitters is to give vigor and tone to the entire organization—the superficial muscles and nerves, as well as the internal viscera. A regular habit, a healthy and [illegible] flow of bile, an active digestion, a good appetite, pure blood, and a vigorous circulation of that fluid, are among the blessings derived from a persistent use of Hostetter's Bitters, which not only more than supplies the place of the best tonics, cathartics and antiseptics prescribed in their separate forms by physicians, but perform the three-fold work of invigoration, regulation and purification, at one and the same time.

The PHOENIX INSURANCE CO. of Hartford, has for many years faithfully prosecuted a Fire Insurance Business successfully and [illegible] encountering obstacles and crumbling them, meeting [illegible] proving equal to them, moving vigorously forward in its noble work "with malice to none and charity to all," building up where the Fire Fiend viciously destroys, and encouraging enterprise by substantially guarding it.

The losses of the "OLD PHOENIX" in the great Chicago Conflagration and which are now being adjusted and paid will only absorb about 50 per cent. of the SURPLUS, leaving the Capital unimpaired with a Residue of Half a Million Dollars.

What is it that Adam never saw, never possessed, and yet gave to each of his children? Answer—A parent.

Paper car wheels are far more durable than those made of iron. A set on a Jersey road has run 300,000 miles, worn out one set of steel tires, and is still in good condition. The ordinary wheels only run about 75,000 miles.

The New York Telegram says "there is a punishment worse than Sing Sing. It is to wait, as Connolly has waited, for the friends of his prosperous days to come forward to his help now in his great need, and to find that they do not come."

A blue gum tree which measured eleven feet in height and girths nine inches, is the latest California sensation. Near it is a tomato stock ten feet high, from which over two bushels of tomatoes have been gathered, nice, juicy and tender.

How true the [illegible] lines are:

There was a little girl
Who had a little curl
Right down in the middle of her forehead,
And when she was good
She was very good,
And when she was bad she was horrid.

As daylight can be seen through very small holes, so little things will illustrate a person's character. Indeed, character consists in little acts well and honorably performed; daily life being the quarry from which we build it up and rough-hew the habits that form it.

The "creeping baby" is the latest invention in the way of a mechanical toy. It is moved by clockwork and imitates a live baby, moving on its hands and knees in the most amusing manner. Nothing better adapted to please the little folks has been brought out for a long time.

A gipsy came to Brigham Young with a pony for [illegible]. "Why, the beast is half starved," [illegible] Brigham, passing his hand over the pony's side. "You can count his ribs." "That's more'n a chap could do with yours," retorted the gipsy. Brigham did not buy that pony.

In his sermon on the importance of little things, Henry Ward Beecher says many men would not blaspheme—oh no! but they use cowards' oaths, saying, "By Jupiter!" when they want to say "By Jehovah!" "Darn it!" when they want to say "Damn it!" "I swow!" when they want to say "I swear!"

A physician who is something of a wag called on a colored Baptist minister and propounded a few [illegible] questions. "Why is it," said he, "that you are not able to do the same miracles as the apostles did? They were protected [illegible] and all kinds of perils, how is it that you are not protected in the same way?" The colored brother responded promptly, "Don't know about that, Doctor. I spect I is. I have tooken a mighty sight of strong medicines from you, Doctor, and I is alive yet."

A NEW POEM FROM LONGFELLOW.—The literary world was undoubtedly much surprised at the recent sudden appearance of a long and elaborate poem from the famous New England poet. It came out unannounced, a proof of the confidence of his publishers in his reputation. He calls it The Divine Tragedy. This suggests to us the grand poem which he has just translated. And it is connected with it distantly, in the subject. Dante treats of man's eternal fate hereafter, in the world to come. Longfellow takes up the subject [illegible] of the gospel [illegible]. The [illegible] is of that [illegible] that he [illegible] in the Golden Legend. The work is in some parts a poetical paraphrase of the New Testament, but in scope it is more. There are lacunæ supplied and features added which make it pre-eminently a poem of the imagination. He opens with a solemn scene in which the angel of the Lord is introduced as bearing the prophet Habakkuk on his way, and revealing to him the purport of his sacred [illegible]. The dialogue is elevated, and yet rapid and effective. This is followed by the [illegible] of John the Baptist. Here the poet shows that wonderful facility of verse and language that the translation of Dante presents. The very diction of the scripture is retained almost unaltered. The dialogue here is carried on by the Baptist and the priests who question him as to his authority and identity. The body of the poem consists of the recital of scenes in the Saviour's life. The [illegible] of the gospel narrative are all introduced, and others needed for the action and perfection of the drama. Throughout [illegible] tenderness, dignity, and depth of feeling. We have no feeling of irreverence, as too often accompanies paraphrases of scriptures, while we seem to have a new meaning thrown upon many passages and incidents of the gospel by this expansion by a powerful and active fancy. The introductory parts are in an irregular rhymed verse, very flexible yet very difficult of management. It is used easily and is kept within proper bounds. The main poem is written in lines of ten syllables, blank verse. The whole design of the book is daring; no one but Longfellow would attempt it, and none but one who has his resources of verse, fancy, and language could accomplish it.

It is perhaps rather late in the day to publish incidents of the Chicago fire, but the Post relates one which deserves more than a local circulation. It is the story of an Indian who had arrived in the city but a few days before the great disaster. As the flames advanced he was standing on the sidewalk of State street. He gazed upon the rushing columns of fire as calmly as if he was contentedly viewing an Apache brother cutting the throat of an Arizona settler. All about him was crackling ruin, but his bronzed face gave no indication of fear. Through the smoke and fire the panic stricken multitude called upon him to fly, but he stood immovable as a statue and vouchsafed no answer. The curling tongues of flame wrapped him in a blazing garment, and when he perished—a victim to a mistaken idea of courage—The proprietor of the cigar store who had him carefully chiseled out of a pine tree, at a cost of twenty-five dollars, is inconsolable.

A private telegram was received on Saturday giving advices of another advance in the Coffee market—now held by importers at 21 cents per pound for all qualities of South and Central American. This sudden rise was unlooked for by many, but our mail advices from New York caused us to anticipate another advance there, which necessarily would cause a corresponding advance in the markets on this coast. Mail advices from New York stated that great firmness and a general activity in all descriptions were again the characteristics of the Coffee market. Dealers who had [illegible] when the improvement took place in October, and only laid in a moderate supply, were again appearing in the market to replenish; and the decline noted by us in the early part of November was fully recovered, with advices from Brazil looked for with great interest, as it was expected by importers they would be of such a tenor as to cause another advance to be made. Mail accounts from Java and from Colombo, as well as from Rio, had not lessened the estimates of deficit, which stood as follows: Java, 24,000 tons short; Ceylon, 10,000 tons and Brazil, 74,000 tons—in all 104,000 tons deficit. According to the London Economist of November 18th, Coffee had advanced 1s per cwt., notwithstanding the amount afloat (not including Java) was 12,900 tons against 7,400 tons in 1870 and 9,850 in 1869. The same number of the Economist contained a letter from its Colombo correspondent under date of October 18th, from which we extract the following:

A continuance of fair weather has enabled carers and shippers to make a good progress in the exports of Coffee crops, of which a good deal has recently gone afloat, though to date but one ship has cleared outwards with a cargo for Great Britain. The distribution of shipments may be seen below:

PLANTATION COFFEE.	1871. cwts.	1870. cwts.
To Great Britain	15,807	......
To foreign ports	......	......
To Australia and Paris	......	2,405
Total	15,807	2,405
NATIVE COFFEE.
To Great Britain	1,310	......
To foreign ports	......	308
To Australia and Paris	......	1,020
Total	1,310	1,328

[illegible] the early part of the fortnight just elapsed there was a good deal of business done in parchment Coffee of all qualities at our previous quotations; more recently the market for this article has been quiet. The comparative scarcity of native clean Coffee and its favorable position in the home market, have enhanced the pretensions of dealers, and we call the article fully two shillings dearer. At present quotations dealers refuse contracts.

At the time the above was written the Colombo people had no intimation of the improvement in Europe and the Eastern States, and the consequent enhancement in the home [illegible] was the natural result; but with receipt of advices giving an advance in the demand market prices in Colombo, it [illegible] would advance very high, and had already and would continue to, in the other supply markets of the world, as long as the stocks in the demand markets are short and importers show in any way [illegible] of short supplies founded upon well established estimates. A late telegram from Rio to New York advised correspondents that the daily receipts of Coffee in [illegible] only averaged 4,000 bags against 9,000 bags for the same time in 1870. The best proof, of the feeling in Europe [illegible] the high prices ruling is the high price paid for the New Domingo Coffee arriving in New York for immediate reshipment to Antwerp, Havre and Hamburg. The prices were 12½@13c. gold, in bond, against 8¾@9c at the same time in 1870. On the 1st of November, the position of stocks in Europe was as follows:

	1871. Tons.	1870. Tons.	1869. Tons.
Continent	64,000	12,000	103,000
Gt. Britain	30,000	21,000	29,000
Total	94,000	100,000	132,000

The English market does not come so directly in competition with the Eastern States' [illegible] in the supply markets as does that of the Continent, and [illegible] the small stocks there compared with 1869, and the increased consumption in Germany with [illegible] effect will cause prices to still further advance East which will cause our market to advance in sympathy as all surplus [illegible] can and will be sold to the Western States.

The following statement shows the imports of Breadstuffs into the United Kingdom from Aug. 1, 1871, to Nov. 26, 1871, in comparison with the two previous years:

CROCKERY AND GLASSWARE—The Boston Shipping List of Dec. 9th says: The recent strike and lock-out in Staffordshire has caused quite a flurry in the market here for Crockery in first hands. Desirable goods bring an advance readily, and as the conviction gains that the lock-out will continue, prices will rule higher and higher. The advance in England will soon cause our market to advance, as our [illegible] import direct from England.

Mr. Dittenhoefer, United States Consul at Manheim, raised over 7,000 florins for the benefit of the Chicago sufferers.

Leaves are now used in certain localities for tanning instead of bark. The process is claimed to be better and cheaper.

The report of the suspension of negotiations between England and France for the modification of the commercial treaty is fully confirmed.

An Ohio man is said to have offered the Government $50,000 for the privilege of advertising on the backs of postage stamps for one year.

"A shoemaker" writes that he is not only willing to give woman her rights, but her "rights and lefts." That is his last joke—shoe-her.

Paper car-wheels are far more durable than those made of iron. A set on a Jersey road has run 100,000 miles, worn out one set of steel tires, and is still in good condition. The ordinary wheels only run about 75,000 miles.

The New York Telegram thinks "there is a punishment worse than Sing Sing. It is to wait, as Connolly has waited, for the friends of his prosperous days to come forward to his help now in his great need, and to find that they do not come."

A blue gum tree which measured eleven feet in height and girths nine inches, is the latest California sensation. Near it is a tomato stock ten feet high, from which over two bushels of tomatoes have been gathered, nice, juicy and tender.

And when she was good
She was very good,
And when she was bad she was horrid.

As daylight can be seen through very small holes, so little things will illustrate a person's character. Indeed, character consists in little acts, habitually and honorably performed; daily life being the quarry from which we build it up and rough hew the habits that form it.

The "creeping baby" is the latest invention in the way of a mechanical toy. It is moved by clockwork and imitates a live baby, moving on its hands and knees in the most amusing manner. Nothing better adapted to please the little folks has been brought out for a long time.

A gipsy came to Brigham Young with a pony for sale. "Why, the beast is half starved," said Brigham, running his hand over the pony's side. "You can count his ribs." "That's more'n a chap could do with yours," retorted the gipsy. Brigham did not buy that pony.

In his sermon on the importance of little things, Henry Ward Beecher says many men would not blaspheme—oh no! but they use cowards' oaths, saying, "By Jupiter!" when they want to say, "By Jehovah!" "Darn it!" when they want to say "Damn it!" "I swow!" when they want to say, "I swear!"

A physician who is something of a wag called on a colored Baptist minister and propounded a few puzzling questions. "Why is it," said he, "that you are not able to do the same miracles that the apostles did? They were protected against poisons and all kinds of perils; how is it that you are not protected in the same way?" The colored brother responded promptly: "Don't know about that, Doctor. I 'spect I is. I have tooken a mighty sight of strong medicines from you, Doctor, and I is alive yet."

A NEW POEM FROM LONGFELLOW.—The literary world was undoubtedly much surprised at the recent sudden appearance of a long and elaborate poem from the famous New England poet. It came out unannounced, a proof of the confidence of his publishers in his reputation. He calls it The Divine Tragedy. This suggests to us the grand poem which he has just translated. And it is connected with it distantly, in the subject. Dante treats of man's eternal fate hereafter, in the world to come. Longfellow takes up the subject [illegible] version of the gospel [illegible]. The form he chooses is of that [illegible] dramatic character that he has used before in the Golden Legend. The work is in some parts a poetical paraphrase of the New Testament, but in scope it is more. There are lacunæ supplied and features added which make it pre-eminently a poem of the imagination. He opens with a solemn scene in which the angel of the Lord is introduced as bearing the prophet Habakkuk on his wings, and rehearsing to him the purport of his [illegible] mission. The dialogue is elevated, and yet rapid and effective. This is followed by the preaching of John the Baptist. Here the poet shows that wonderful facility of verse and language that the translation of Dante presents. The very diction of the scriptures is retained almost unaltered. The dialogue here is carried on by the Baptist and the priests who question him as to his authority and identity. The body of the poem consists of the recital of scenes in the Saviour's life. The persons of the gospel narrative are all introduced, and others needed for the action and perfection of the drama. Throughout the whole there is a sustained tenderness, dignity, and depth of feeling. We have no feeling of irreverence, as too often accompanies paraphrases of scriptures, while we seem to have a new meaning thrown upon many passages and incidents of the gospel by this expansion by a powerful and active fancy. The introductory parts are in an irregular rhymed verse, very flexible yet very difficult of management. It is used easily and is kept within proper bounds. The main poem is written in lines of ten syllables, blank verse. The whole design of the book is daring; no one but Longfellow would attempt it, and none but one who has his resources of verse, fancy, and language could accomplish it.

It is perhaps rather late in the day to publish incidents of the Chicago fire, but the Post relates one which deserves more than a local circulation. It is the story of an Indian who had arrived in the city but a few days before the great disaster. As the flames advanced he was standing on the sidewalk of State street. He gazed upon the rushing columns of fire as calmly as if he was contentedly viewing an Apache brother cutting the throat of an Arizona settler. All about him was crackling ruin, but his bronzed face gave no indication of fear. Through the smoke and fire the panic stricken multitude called upon him to fly, but he stood immovable as a statue and vouchsafed no answer. The curling tongues of flame wrapped him in a blazing garment, and soon he perished—a victim to a mistaken idea of courage. The proprietor of the cigar store who had him carefully chiseled out of a pine tree, at a cost of twenty-five dollars, is inconsolable.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

TUESDAY EVENING, Jan. 2, 1872.

Gold in New York 109⅛.

Portland Legal Tender quotations 90½c buying; 91½c selling.

The propeller Merrimac towed the bark Almatia to Kalama yesterday.

The bark Rival was taken to Cementville to-day under tow by the Merrimac, where she will take in a cargo of Lumber for San Francisco.

The ship Windward was towed up as far as Westport by the Okanagan, where she was left. It is confidently expected that she will be up within two weeks.

The steamer Emma Hayward left to-day at 11 o'clock for Astoria to tow up one of the vessels there.

The steamer Ajax is due to-morrow morning. She is announced to leave this port for San Francisco, Saturday, January, 6th.

The North Pacific Transportation Company announce the steamer California for Victoria and Sound ports on January 13th, and the steamer Gussie Telfair for Seattle, San Juan, Nanaimo and Sitka, January 10th.

A private telegram was received on Saturday giving advices of another advance in the Coffee market—now held by importers at 21 cents per pound for all qualities of South and Central American. This sudden rise was unlooked for by many, but our mail advices from New York caused us to anticipate another advance there, which necessarily would cause a corresponding advance in the markets on this coast. Mail advices from New York stated that great firmness and a general activity in all descriptions were again the characteristics of the Coffee market. Dealers who hesitated when the improvement took place in October, and only laid in a moderate supply, were again appearing in the market to replenish; and the decline noted by us in the early part of November was fully recovered, with advices from Brazil looked for with great interest, as it was expected by importers they would be of such a tenor as to cause another advance to be made. Mail accounts from Java and from Colombo, as well as from Rio, had not lessened the estimates of deficit, which stood as follows: Java, 24,000 tons short; Ceylon, 10,000 tons and Brazil, 74,000 tons—in all 104,000 tons deficit. According to the London Economist of November 18th, Coffee had advanced 1s per cwt., notwithstanding the amount afloat (not including Java) was 12,000 tons against 7,400 tons in 1870 and 9,850 in 1869. The same number of the Economist contained a letter from its Colombo correspondent, under date of October 18th, from which we extract the following:

A continuance of fair weather has enabled curers and shippers to make a good progress in the exports of Coffee crops, of which a good deal has recently gone afloat, though to date but one ship has cleared outwards with a cargo for Great Britain. The distribution of shipments may be seen below:

PLANTATION COFFEE.

To Great Britain	16,307	.....
To foreign ports	.....	.....
To Australia and India	.....	2,405
Total	16,307	2,405

NATIVE COFFEE.

	1871.	1870.
To Great Britain	1,310	.....
To foreign ports	.....	308
To Australia and India	.....	1,020
Total	1,310	1,328

During the early part of the fortnight just elapsed there was a good deal of business done in parchment Coffee of all qualities, at our previous quotations; more recently the market for this article has been quiet. The comparative scarcity of native clean Coffee and its favorable position in the home market, have enhanced the pretensions of dealers, and we call the article fully two shillings dearer. At present quotations dealers refuse contracts.

At the time the above was written the Colombo people had no intimation of the improvement in Europe and the Eastern States, and the consequent enhancement in the home market was the natural result; but with receipt of advices giving an advance in the demand market prices in Colombo, it was expected, would advance very high, as it had already and would continue to, in the other supply markets of the world, as long as the stocks in the demand markets are short and importers show in any way apprehensions of short supplies founded upon well established estimates. A late telegram from Rio to New York advised correspondents that the daily receipts of Coffee in Rio only averaged 4,500 bags against 9,000 bags for the same time in 1870. The best proof of the feeling in Europe in respect to the high prices ruling is the high price paid for the New Domingo Coffee arriving in New York for immediate reshipment to Antwerp, Havre and Hamburg. The prices were 12½@13c, gold, in bond, against 8¾@9c at the same time in 1870. On the 1st of November the position of stocks in Europe was as follows:

	Tons.	Tons.	Tons.
Continent	64,000	74,000	103,000
Great Britain	30,000	31,000	29,000
Total	94,000	105,000	132,000

The English market does not come so directly in competition with the Eastern States markets in the supply markets as does that of the Continent, and consequently the small stocks there compared with 1869, and the increased consumption in Germany with less afloat will cause prices to still further advance East which will cause our market to advance in sympathy as all surplus received can and will be sold to the Western States.

The following statement shows the imports of Breadstuffs into the United Kingdom from Aug. 28, 1871, to Nov. 18, 1871, in comparison with the two previous years:

	1871.	1870.	1869.

Produce Market.

WHEAT—The market, under telegraphic advices received Saturday informing previous advices of the decline in San Francisco, is weak at $2 10 ₩ cental. We have heard of one or two lots offered this morning, but owing to there not meeting views of sellers no sales were made.

FLOUR—We have nothing new to offer regarding the market. The local consumption has been fair, but now that the holidays are over it is thought that the trade will soon commence replenishing. We quote extra of standard brands at $7 ₩ bbl; of choice country; $6 75; of superfine and outside, $6@6 50.

OATS—Owing to the arrival of the ship Windward being daily expected, the stock is small with demand fair at 62½@65 ₩ cental.

HAY—Choice Timothy, baled, commands $35@40 ₩ ton; other descriptions, $30@30.

POULTRY—Dealers are paying $4 50 ₩ doz for large sized Hens and Roosters. Turkeys are dull and prices nominal. Geese, $9@10 50 ₩ doz. Ducks, $6@7 50 ₩ doz.

General Merchandise.

COFFEE—A private telegram from San Francisco quotes market at 21c all [illegible] from first hands. Our market has been advancing in sympathy.

CROCKERY AND GLASSWARE—The Boston Shipping List of Dec. 9th says: The recent strike and lockout in Staffordshire has caused quite a flurry in the market here for Crockery in first hands. Desirable goods bring an advance readily, and as the conviction gains that the lock-out will continue prices will rule higher and higher." The advance in England will soon cause our market to advance, as our heaviest dealers import direct from England.
